EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

Regulation 63B enables an agricultural tenant in Scotland to certain times of the year notwithstanding the Heather Burning (Scotland) Act, 1926, and any prohibition or restriction contained in his lease. This Regulation has been superseded by sections 22 to 27 of the Hill Farming Act, 1946.

Paragraph (2) of Regulation 103 extends the jurisdiction of the chief constable of Cornwall, for the purposes of the Regulations, to include the Isles of Scilly. Regulation 104A extends certain provisions of the Defence Regulations to Allied Powers and Associated Authorities and persons in the service of any such Power or Authority.

Both Regulation 103 (2) and Regulation 104A had effect under the Emergency Laws (Transitional Provisions) Act, 1946, as well as under the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945. So far as the first Act was concerned, they expired on the 31st December, 1947, and were not continued by the Emergency Laws (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1947. This expiry, however, did not affect their continued operation under the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945, and, in order to bring them completely to an end, it is now necessary to revoke them under section 3 of the latter Act. This is done by the present Order.
